THE TEACHER'S CREED.

"I believe in boys and girls, the men and women of a great tomorrow; that whatsoever the boy soweth the man shall reap. I believe in the curse of ignorance, in the efficacy of schools, in the dignity of teaching, in the joy of serving others. I believe in wisdom as revealed in human lives as well as in the pages of a printed book; in lessons taught, not so much by precept as by example; in ability to work with the hands as well as to think with the head; in everything that makes life large and lovely. I believe in beauty in the school-room, in the home, in daily life and in out-of-doors. I believe in laughter, in love, in faith, in all ideals and distant hopes that lure us on. I believe that every hour of every day we receive a just reward for all we do. I believe in the present and its opportunities, in the future and its promises, and in the divine joy of living."

SPLASHING, YES! BUT—

It is rather appalling some times to view the lethargic state into which most of our organized activities have fallen. There have plenty of members. Yes, quite a large and impressive number. Somebody organizes something and sends out the call, "Come on in, girls! The water's fine!" And the girls dive in, jump in, slide in, fall in—get in. There is no doubt about their coming members. But when they get in they can only splash around because they are exhausted from swimming vigorously in some other pools of theirs are reserving their strength for the other pools they must get in that day.

I agree fully that practically all of our organizations are necessary for the well-rounded development of every girl. But it seems to me that each of us belongs to too many organizations to give our loyal support to all of them, to put our best efforts into any one of them, or to derive the most benefit from them. There is the danger that we will become too rounded in our development. Instead of becoming a solid, forceful personality, we will become so smooth and well-versed that it will be difficult to distinguish us from "dumb-bells."

The aim of college training has been defined by Mr. Herbert Gray as being an effort to develop the power of concentrated thought on the part of the student and to develop her power of self-control. This aim can not be realized when we are so rushed that we have no time for concentration.

ARCHERY.

Winthrop has many forms of athletics which offer both work and play to her students. The origin of an archery set to our gymnasium equipment now presents a new kind of recreation. The origin of archery is lost in mists of antiquity, but its history has been filled with wars and romances. The great peoples of Egypt, Assyria and Greece were skilled in the use of the bow, and to them it represented a means of defense as well as a pastime. When the Crusaders left their homes to seek the Holy Sepulchre they carried with them their trusty bow and a quiver of arrows. All the romance of old England lies in her legends of such brave men as Robin Hood and his band of skilled archers. In English history there was a time when the king commanded the general practice of archery on Sundays and holidays, all other sports being forbidden. The history of archery is the history of men and of countries. With the passing of the Crusaders, William Tell, Robin Hood and the American Indian, archery ceased to be a method of warfare, but it still remains a popular form of sport.

Winthrop students are eagerly looking forward to the actual opening of practice of the latest form of athletics. As yet only the members of the Junior and Senior classes in the Physical Education course have tested

ANSWER.

The sunbeams splash through moving leaves,
And drench the grass below;
The springing things exult with life,
Ecstatically they grow.

And from the earth of pulsing brown
Rich odors sweet and strong
To pass abroad to flower hearts
And gleam in pansy eyes.

WINTHROP DAUGHTERS OF CHARLESTON ELECT OFFICERS.

News and Courier, May 8.

In accordance with the request from the Alumnae Association of Winthrop College, that all chapters elect their officers in the spring, the Charleston chapter elected officers for the ensuing year at its regular meeting a few days ago and these officers will be installed at the meeting in June. Miss Anne Porcher, the president, to the regret of everyone, refused to consider re-election, and Miss May Pyatt was elected president. Other officers were: Mrs. James B. Hodges, vice-president; Miss Ida Dwight, treasurer; Mrs. Thomas V. Hamford, secretary, and Miss Cheville Brantford, gleamer.

Plans for raising money were discussed extensively and a committee was appointed to investigate several of the approved plans. The chapter gives $26 each year to a girl attending Winthrop and the members are anxious to have this amount in hand before the chapter adjourns for the summer months.

Miss Ida Dwight reported on the recent banquet, and it was noted that the small deficit resulting be covered with a check from the treasury.

Two letters, one from the student body at Winthrop and the other from Miss F. M. Reynolds, teacher of mathematics at the college, were read and greatly enjoyed, the members of the chapter living over many of their college days through the reading.

The three hostesses of the afternoon, Mrs. T. W. Reynolds, Mrs. Isaac Bryan and Mrs. D. C. Stevenson, served a delicious sweet course at the conclusion of the business meeting.

Those present were: Mrs. E. Henry Cappellmann, Mrs. M. S. Lewis, Mrs. D. C. Stevenson, the Misses Louise Bailey, Ida Dwight, Anne Porcher, Bonnie Odum, Margaret Martindale, Cheville Brantford, Eneve Crouch and May Pyatt, Mrs. Robert F. Tomhey, Mrs. Benjamin B. Bellinger, Mrs. Thomas W. Reynolds, Mrs. Isaac Bryan, Mrs. James B. Hodges, Mildred Lewis, Mrs. J. Trauger Jervey and Mrs. B. W. Clauss.

SCOUTS GO ON HIKE TO THE CATAWBA RIVER

The Scout hike on Monday, May 12, was unanimously voted the best of the season. The seven-mile tramp to the river showed the ease with which the girls, led by Miss Robertson, had learned to walk several miles and at the same time enjoy the beauties of the outdoors. A most inviting dinner of irresistible "sissy and chee-bobs," the by-word of the Scout hikes, satisfied the keen appetites. A thrilling climb over the dam and rocky banks, followed by a boat-ride across the river, was ended all too soon by the approach of leaving time. The enthusiastic accounts of the hike given by the girls, tired but supremely happy, proved that the holiday could not have been spent in a better way, and that Miss Robertson just "couldn't be beat."

The hikers included the following: Miss Robertson, Elizabeth Watson, Catherine Peterman, Helen Bickley, Jeanne Gadsden, Catherine Bryant, Marian Martin, Julia Worriener, Helen Deunam, Ida Cuttino, Isabel McKinnel, Ray Stevenson, Sara King, Hilda Svon, Mary Ellen Gains, Blanche La Boin, Jack McMillan, Miranda Stuckey, and Marion Blackwell.

Dr. Johnson Re-Elected.

At a meeting in Sunter of the South Carolina Sunday School association last Thursday, Dr. D. B. Johnson, of Winthrop, was re-elected vice-president. Rev. Watson B. Duncan, a former pastor of St. John's Methodist church, here, was re-elected president.

"Your father ain't a real doctor, yet."

"Yes, he is."

"Nope, He's just practicing medicine."

Mother: (Proudly): "This is my son Freddie, Mrs. Higgins. Isn't he a bright little fellow?"

Freddie: (Acquainted to being shown off in public): "What was that clever thing I said yesterday, mother?"

Cholly: "The dentist told me that I had a large cavity that need filling."

Ethel: "Did he recommend any special course of study?"

MISS MARIE NEWTON IS HEARD IN A RECITAL.

Another in the series of piano recitals for graduation was that given by Miss Marie Newton on Friday evening, May 16. Miss Newton gave great pleasure in the rendering of her interesting program and was assisted by Miss Eunice Jordan, soprano, with Miss Annie Kate Jordan as accompanist. The following interesting program was rendered: Sonata in C Minor, Opus 12, Beethoven, Allegro, Molto, Adagio cantabile, Rondo.

Aria, "Yes, at Length 'Tis the Moment!" (The Marriage of Figaro), Mozart.

Etude in E Major, Chopin, La Cathedrale engloutie, Debussy, Intermezzo in B Flat Major, Brahms.

Polonaise in B Major, Palesterewski, Songs—"Down to the Crystal Streamlet," Grand Schaefer, "The Little Green Leaves," Spross.

Fantasia on Motives from Beethoven's "Ruins of Athens," Liszt, Second piano forte, Miss Campbell.

Though living in Tatum, S. C., Miss Newton was graduated from the McCall High school, from whence she came to Winthrop to enroll as a student in the music course. Having in childhood showed an inclination toward music, this was but the fulfillment of her desire to make a serious study of it. Early in her college career she identified herself with the student volunteer movement and has given herself freely to its interests. In addition to these achievements she has made scores of friends, all of whom wish for her the best of success in her future work.

BEADS SUMTER DAUGHTERS.

Mrs. M. L. Parler Again Elected President of Sumter Chapter.

Sunder, May 16. A large, well-attended and highly enjoyable meeting of the members of the Sumter chapter of Winthrop Daughters was held Saturday at the home of Mrs. Louis Williamson with Mrs. Williamson and Mrs. Harry Parker as hostesses for the occasion.

The chief event of the meeting was the election of officers for the year, resulting as follows: President, Mrs. M. L. Parler; vice-president, Mrs. Dorothy Shaw; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Harry Parker; publicity chairman, Mrs. Louis Williamson.

The chapter considers itself fortunate in again securing the services of Mrs. Parler as president and Mrs. Parker as secretary and treasurer, for it was under their regime during the past year that the chapter has had its most successful year. These officers have done exceptionally fine work to keep the chapter active and constantly aiming at new and more important phases of work.

It was suggested by the president and voted to have a banquet in honor of the new Winthrop graduates in June. This occasion will be known as "gentlemen's night" and every member is to invite one male friend to the banquet. A committee was appointed to arrange a year book to be presented at the next meeting and it was decided to sell ice cream at Charleston this year, as has been the custom for several years. At the close of the business session a social hour was spent, during which the hostesses served refreshments.

"Is your mother giving you anything for the cold you have in your head?"

"Yes, she gave me a clean handkerchief."

ON AND OFF THE CAMPUS

Senator H. S. Rogers of Dillon visited his niece, Misses Marjorie and Bertha Oliver, last week-end.

Mr. Carl Montgomery, of Charleston, spent the week-end in Rock Hill, visiting his niece, A. C. Haselden.

Claudia Canley, Betty Haile and A. C. Haselden spent Sunday and Monday in Columbia, as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Canley.

Harriet Cheatham and Louise Smith entertained the members of the P. S. Club at a delightful picnic supper on back campus, Monday evening. Miss Gary Cheatham chaperoned the party. The members of this club are Frances Todd, Harriet Cheatham, Mary Seales, Mary Stover, Sara Katherine Barksdale, Laura Hudgens, Dorothy Pope, and Louise Smith.

Miss Hope Iselin, of Aiken, was in Rock Hill for a few days this week, visiting Adelaide Henderson.

Mrs. Green, of Greenville, visited her daughter, Jessie, last week-end. Sunday morning she entertained the following girls at breakfast at the cafeteria: Nell Hunter, Sadie Thomas, Harriet Folk, Nell Peoples, Vera Gresham, Lillian Myers, Harriet Fairchild, Margaret Morris and several others.

Bette and Ethel Ann McClure spent the week-end at their home in Chester.

THE JUNIOR-SENIOR RECEPTION IS OVER

for the banquet. The tables were artistically decorated with flowers of many kinds and colors in the center connected by colored ribbons to the mind cups marking each place. As the guests were seated, Claudia Canley, president of the Junior class, led the Princess of the evening, Jess Matthews, to her throne in a host of wisteria and moss, and in an appropriate speech, carrying out the idea that the Seniors were the princesses to whom the Juniors, as shepherds, had looked up and striven to be like during their three years together. Miss Canley presented her with a bunch of snapdragons as a symbol of her high office. Miss Matthews with true queenly dignity responded.

During the whole of the banquet the orchestra played most inspiring and exhilarating music. Elizabeth Edwards offered a toast to the seniors, to which Margaret Workman responded in a toast to the Juniors. Both paid tribute to the two classes and spoke with regret of the time now drawing near in which they must part. It seemed only fitting at this time that those who had been the guides of the two classes should be mentioned. Musette Taylor offered a toast to the faculty, to which Dean Kinard, as a representative of that body, responded. The guests were entertained, as they feasted, by several originally dressed dances. Annie Capers Haselden, the shepherd of the play, Ina Mazzyk and Georgia Powell gave an interpretative dance, which was very beautiful.

As the banquet drew to a close, Miss Grier rose and told the company that in order that the occasion should ever be kept fresh in their memory, she had asked Mr. Thacker to take a flashlight picture. After this memento was secured the company proceeded to the gymnasium where the festivity of the evening was to be continued.

The last part of the Junior-Senior reception was held in the Peabody Gymnasium, used for the first time for this occasion, in order to accommodate the unusual number of guests.

The gymnasium was arranged like a beautiful garden with climbing wisteria and hanging moss, and the gay colors mingling and blending on the dance floor made the whole scene resemble a brilliant lawn (etc etc) foreign court. Everyone looked lovely; we did not know there were so many pretty girls at Winthrop. The orchestra was splendid, and all who could dance; the rest found almost as much pleasure in watching for the shifting sea of happy faces and bright dresses made a beautiful picture. Every now and then an interesting couple would stand out a moment from the crowd, as they stood out in recollection.

But it was new time for the saddest part of the evening. The Juniors sang their farewell to the Seniors with full hearts and the lights were lowered and the Seniors made us all weep with their song. It seemed just a few minutes then until it was all over. Miss Matthews made the welcome announcement that "babe" said we could sleep through breakfast in the morning and then it was time to go home. The Junior-Senior reception was a great success, and we hate to think that, just like Christmas, it will be another whole year before it can happen again.

Y. W. CONVENTION HELD IN NEW YORK

we try to live all of it outside ourselves. Records of the past never become history until we re-live them in our own lives. Let us re-live the gospel.

The most vital part of the convention to Winthrop delegates was the meeting of second National Student Assembly. Delegates from industrial and business clubs also held their assemblies. The six sessions of the Student Assembly were held in the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church. Much of the discussion here centered around the report of the Standards Commission appointed at Hot Springs, which has been studying the underlying philosophy and purpose of Student Associations. This is the beginning of what will ultimately be a revolution in radical changes in college Y. W. C. A. A finance program was also discussed and students voted what part they would assume in the National Budget. A joint student and industrial meeting was held, at which some students felt that the industrial girl made decidedly the largest contribution to this meeting. An interesting phase of the assembly was the discussion group, each group composed of not more than 15 people. Here were thrashed out some of the problems which are facing students all over the country. These problems varying from relations with men to questions of doctrinal and institutionalized religion.

One session of the convention as a whole was given over to reports from these four separate Assemblies. Miss Elizabeth Wolfe, '27 graduate of Brenau College, who will be one of the five representatives from the national Y. W. C. A. to the World Student Christian Federation meeting in Lee High, England, next August, spoke for the students.

PATRICIANS' ENTERTAINMENT WITH "HORACE" PROGRAM

In view of the fact that the Freshmen in the Latin Department will study the Odes and Epodes of Horace next year, the Patricians entertained them with a "Horace" program on Wednesday afternoon.

The Patricians were also glad to give a new member meet with them. As Latin was the only classic offered when the Patrician Club was organized, the club has naturally been looked upon as a Latin one. But now that Greek has been added to the curriculum, the constitution has been broadened to include the Greek students as members of the club. The requirements are the same as those for the Latin students, namely an average of "A" on two terms' work. Miss Louise Wolfe, having met these requirements, was present at the meeting.

The president, Miss Ruby Courtney, presiding over her first meeting, welcomed the guests with a few timely remarks, after which the following program was given: The Life of Horace, by Helen Brannan; a poem "On Sabine Hills," by Abner McKinney; A Personal Interpretation of Horace, by Kathleen Solley; The Loves Quarrel, a modern translation of one of Horace's odes, by Elizabeth McMillan and Gladys Sanders; A Song, Integer Vitae, one of Horace's most famous odes, which has been set to music and was used as a college song in the middle ages, by the Patrician Quartet, Dennis Martin, Margaret Cooper, Evelyn Shiner and Isabelle Rhoades.

The Patricians then adjourned to the reading room, where a pleasant social hour was enjoyed. During the course of the hour dairy refreshments of iced tea and sandwiches were served.

THE KIND OF MAN THE WINTHROP GIRLS LIKE

Students Express Their Preference Through Ballot Printed In The Johnonian Recently.

Some weeks ago, The Johnonian staff published the results of a questionnaire conducted by the Y. M. C. A. of the University of Tennessee. The subject of the questionnaire was the type of girl the modern young man prefers, and it revealed some interesting aspects of masculine preference.

Not wishing to have the matter entirely a one-sided affair, The Johnonian offered opportunity for members of the upper classes at the college and the alumnae to express their preference as to the type of young man preferred by the modern girl. Many ballots have been received and the tabulation reveals the following interesting percentages showing the preferences of the young women:

	Yes	No
1. Should he dance?	60%	40%
2. Play cards?	55%	45%
3. Gamble?	100%	0%
4. Flirt?	8%	92%
5. Smoke?	58%	42%
6. Use cosmetics?	36%	64%
7. Be skilled in domestic arts?	20%	80%
8. Orderly?	100%	0%
9. Limit his dates?	80%	20%
10. Affectionate?	99%	1%
11. Sympathetic?	100%	0%
12. Thoughtful?	100%	0%
13. Studious?	86%	14%

MISS MINNIE YARBOROUGH STANDS P.L.D. EXAMINATION

It is of interest to her many friends on the campus to learn that Miss Minnie Clair Yarbrough, for a number of years a member of the English faculty of the college, has successfully completed her work for the Ph.D. degree at Columbia University. Miss Yarbrough recently attended her final oral examination and passed with a highly creditable record. She is now engaged upon the concluding chapters of her doctor's thesis.

Miss Yarbrough is pleasantly remembered at Winthrop and she has been engaged to return for work in the summer session.

Lady: (Engaging nurse): "Have you had any experience with children?"

Applicant: "Yes, mum, Shure, Oi used to be a child myself!"

Johnny—"Huh! I bet you didn't have a good time at your birthday party yesterday."

Willie—"That's all you know about it."

"Then why ain't you sick today?"

CHRISTOPHER THURBER TELLS OF RELIEF WORK

just two or three weeks old and some only two or three years old. I wish more could have been there and seen what I saw. There was the great Black Sea. They had never seen a picture of a battleship. There was no printing in the English language because it might teach the Christian religion. They saw three American battleships and these little children thought they were in heaven. They got down on their knees and prayed. They made the sign of the cross and one little girl cried "Where is God?" The Red Cross nurses on board these ships ministered to these little ones and these people today look to America as their only help and their only guide.

"There is no Armenia today and we have 6,000 children that you have helped to save. We must take care of them five or six years more. Many of them are now working. They have gone out as servants because we have not the money to take care of children over 14 years of age. We have got to keep on for the next five or six years and take care of all these children. Hundreds of little boys France has taken. It looks now as if America might fail. These little ones have asked God to bless America, and America, which God has blessed, is tired of giving. America has not sacrificed.

We have sent out millions but we have not felt it. This is your work, my friends, and I am only glad that I could come and tell you what we have done.

"We had 20 American battleships in Constantinople last year, and the food left on the tables, the crumbs left by the sailors, kept 8,000 people alive. Wastes in your homes here in America would save thousands, countless thousands, so I beg you to keep on with your prayers, your help, and I know you will be glad to remember that this is your work and I am simply one of the 3,000 that have gone over as your representatives. No father, no mother, no brother, no sister—you have been the mother, the father, the brother, and sister to these thousands of little children. I am very glad to come and thank you in behalf of these little children who pray for America every day."

VISIT BIRTHPLACE OF GREAT COLLEGE

Reception at State House.

After leaving the chapel, the members of the party were carried to various points of interest about the city. They were shown the boyhood home of Woodrow Wilson on Hampton street and went out to the state hospital, where they were welcomed by Dr. C. Fred Williams. The Governor's mansion was also pointed out and when the University of South Carolina was reached, a rousing welcome was accorded the visitors by the students and by Dr. William D. Mellon, president, who in a few appropriate words expressed the pleasure of the university in having the Winthrop seniors as its visitors. Wales Gardens were also visited and some of the party went through parts of Shandon.

About noon, the party returned to the business section of the city and for a little while were the guests of The State company. They were escorted through the building; saw the composing and the press rooms; and stopped for a few moments in the news and editorial offices.

At 12:30 o'clock they visited the State House. A reception was held in the governor's office. Governor McLeod and Mrs. McLeod, J. H. Hope, state superintendent of education; Capt. W. H. McLaughlin, a member of the board of trustees of Winthrop; Miss Clara Yarbrough and Miss Alvin Maxey, members of the office force, and Miss Jessie Matthews of Clemson, president of the senior class, were in the receiving line.

After the reception, the girls spent a short time on the second floor of the building where they visited the hall of the house of representatives, the senate chamber and the state library.

At the State House steps the visitors were served refreshments by members of the Columbia chapter of Winthrop Daughters under the chairmanship of Mrs. W. H. McLaughlin.

When the girls left the State House they were at liberty to follow their own inclinations. Many of them had friends in Columbia whom they visited and others visited the stores, the picture shows and other places of entertainment.

Makes a Fine Impression.

The girls made a fine impression in Columbia. While they perhaps learned much about Columbia which they did not know before, Columbia too learned something of Winthrop from its product.

They made up a strong, intelligent and wholesome looking group, and the fine physical condition in which they were attested to by the fact that while they put in a strenuous day they were not exhausted when they left yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock, but bade the city goodbye with all the wholeheartedness of healthy young Americans.

Dr. Johnson expressed his appreciation of the courtesies which had been shown the visiting students and members of the faculty. He thanked the chamber of commerce for its assistance in providing, through its members, automobiles for the trip about the city, and expressed his thanks for the kindnesses met with on every hand. When Frank Pierson, secretary of the chamber of commerce, suggested that the trip be made an annual affair, Dr. Johnson said that the proposition was worthy of consideration.

Among those who accompanied the seniors to Columbia were Dr. D. B. Johnson and Mrs. Johnson; Mrs. Ruth P. Bartlett, Miss Nancy G. Campbell, Miss Sara M. Marston, Miss Leila A. Russell, J. P. Kinard, Dean, J. T. Brown, Mr. Julian Sims, Mrs. E. O. Watson and Miss Minnie Parker.

Young Lady—"Were you pleased with the new school, little boy?" Little Boy—"New! They made me wash my face and when I went home the dog bit me 'cause he didn't know me."
